

10 Things I'm Grateful For

It's easy to focus on what we don't have, what we want and what is just out of our reach. Many of us imagine what it must be like for the people that earn more than us. But how people look at their finances rarely changes as their income level increases. Some people focus on what they don't have and others focus on what they do have. What would your life look like if you were simply grateful for all you have right now? What if you wanted for nothing?
